Plumbing Facilities and Estimates of Dilapidated Housing

Addendum: ACCURACY OF ESTIMATES

This statement presents the additional information on the sampling and estimation errors referred to on page XIII of the 1970 Census of Housing HC(6) report, Plumbing Facilities and Estimates of Dilapidated Housing.<sup>1</sup> The report provides 1970 and 1960 statistics on plumbing facilities and condition of housing units for the United States, States, standard metropolitan statistical areas (SMSA's) and their constituent counties, central cities, and places of 50,000 inhabitants or more.

The accuracy of the estimates is given in tables A to J in this statement. Part of table A and all of table B appear in the Volume VI report; the additional information in table A consists of the standard errors on the 1970 counts of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities. Tables C to J relate to the remaining measures of accuracy not shown in the published report.

The following symbols are used in the tables: Three dots "... " mean not applicable; "NA" means not available; and a dash "-" signifies zero or a figure that rounds to zero.

The statistics in the report are derived from various sources. Table C lists the sources of the data published in the report, the relevant measures of error presented in this statement, and the tables containing the measures.

For the estimates for which standard errors are presented (tables D, E, F, and G), the sample estimate and an estimate of its standard error permit construction of interval estimates with prescribed confidence that the interval includes the average result of all possible samples. For example, if all possible samples were selected, and if each of these were surveyed under essentially the same conditions, and if an estimate and its standard error were calculated from each sample, then—

- i. The chances are about 68 out of 100 that the survey estimate will differ from the average result

TABLE C. Guide to Source and Accuracy of Published Data

E for the United States and regions

F for 15 selected SMSA's

G for the major city of 15 selected SMSA's

Tables H, I, and J give estimates of root mean square error:

H for divisions

I for States

J for counties within SMSA's

of all possible samples by less than one standard error (plus or minus). An interval from one standard error below the estimate to one standard error above the estimate is called a 68-percent confidence interval; and

- ii. The chances are about 95 out of 100 that the difference would be less than twice the standard error (plus or minus). An interval from two standard errors below the estimate to two standard errors above the estimate is called a 95-percent confidence interval.

Thus, the interval constructed from a particular sample can be said to include the average of all possible samples with the specified confidence.

To illustrate, if the 1970 estimate of total housing units in an area were 5,000 units, the standard error is found in the first column of table D to be 140 units. The interval from 4,720 to 5,280 housing units would be the 95-percent confidence interval for this estimate. If the number of estimated 1970 housing units were 7,000, then one would determine the standard error by linear interpolation in table D. The standard error of 7,000 is estimated to be 164 units ( $140 + 2/5(60)$ ). Based on these data, the conclusion is that the average estimate of total housing units derived from all possible samples lies within the interval from 6,672 to 7,328 housing units with 95-percent confidence.

Tables E, F, and G give the estimated standard error directly for the areas they cover. The accuracy of national and regional estimates of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities appears in table E. For example, the number of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities for Negro renters in the Northeast in 1970 is estimated as 96,553 housing units; the corresponding standard error, as shown in table E, is 12,400 units.

Tables H, I, and J present approximate measures of the reliability of estimates of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities in 1970 for divisions, States, and counties within SMSA's. The root mean square errors presented in these tables can be used to give a rough idea of the reliability of the published data for these geographic areas. For example, for Beaver County, Pennsylvania, the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities is estimated as 2,367 out of a total count of year-round housing units of 65,942. The root mean square error shown in table J for counties in the Northeast with 1,000-4,999 dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities is 700 units. It is expected that the estimates for about 95 percent of the counties in this group would have a root mean square error of 1,400 housing units or less (i.e., twice the root mean square error or less). This would make it probable that the range from 967 to 3,767 housing units would include the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities for Beaver County, Pennsylvania.

The reason that standard errors are not used as measures of variability for divisions, States, and counties within SMSA's is that (as pointed out in the section on "Qualifications of estimates" in the Introduction of the report) the estimates of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities for these areas are subject to an estimation bias. When a sample estimate is biased, a meaningful measure of its accuracy should reflect both sampling variability and bias. Such a measure is the root mean square error, where the mean square error is the sum of the square of the standard error and the square of the bias.

For the method of estimation used, it is not possible to estimate the bias for any particular publication area separately. Consequently, a table of root mean square errors for individual publication areas cannot be produced. However, it is possible to develop an estimate of a root mean square error for groupings of areas as described in the following paragraph.

For 1960 dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities, both an unbiased 25-percent sample estimate and an estimate from an estimation procedure similar to that used to obtain the corresponding 1970 estimates are available for individual publication areas. The difference between the two 1960 estimates for a publication area, shown in columns 6 and 7 of the data tables, is used to produce an estimate of the bias of the estimation procedure used to obtain the 1970 estimates of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities. The average of the squares of the 1960 biases for a group of areas was used as an approximation of the mean square bias of the 1970 estimates for that same group. This approximation was then combined with an estimate of the sampling variance to provide an approximation of a mean square error for the group of areas. The square root of the mean square error is the approximate root mean square error shown in tables H, I, and J.

Considering the nature of these estimates, the approximate root mean square errors given in tables H, I, and J should be used as a rough measure of reliability only.

The approximate root mean square errors do not cover all geographic areas shown in the published report. Information regarding areas not covered in tables H, I, and J may be obtained by writing to the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233.

GENERAL

This report of the 1970 Census of Housing presents 1970 and 1960 statistics on plumbing facilities and condition of housing unit for the United States, States, standard metropolitan statistical areas (SMSA's) and their constituent counties, central cities, and places of 50,000 inhabitants or more. Legal provision for the 1970 Census of Population and Housing, which was conducted as of April 1, 1970, was made in the Act of Congress of August 31, 1954 (amended August 1957), which codified Title 13, United States Code.

The 1970 tabulations in this report provide counts of year-round housing units lacking some or all plumbing facilities from the 1970 Census of Population and Housing and estimates of the number of units with all plumbing facilities but in dilapidated condition. Information on the structural condition of housing units was not collected in the 1970 census because of serious problems with response reliability. The estimates in this report were obtained indirectly by combining data on structural condition obtained in the post-census sample survey of Components of Inventory Change with data on related housing characteristics from the census. The estimation procedure used assumes that the proportion of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities defined by selected categories of tenure, race, vacancy status, and other characteristics is the same for all smaller areas (counties, cities, etc.) within larger geographic areas. To the extent that this assumption does not hold true, these estimates are subject to bias, as well as sampling variability.

The 1960 data were obtained from a tabulation of the decennial census records which provided counts of units lacking some or all plumbing facilities as well as counts of units with all plumbing facilities that were rated as dilapidated by the 1960 census interviewers. In addition, an estimation procedure similar to that used to derive the 1970 estimates of dilapidated housing with all plumbing facilities was applied to the 1960 data. The resulting 1960 estimates may be compared with the data tabulated directly from the 1960 census records to give a rough indication of the level of bias of the 1970 estimates obtained using the same procedures. (For a detailed discussion of the estimation procedure, see section on "Procedure for Estimating Dilapidated Units With All Plumbing Facilities.")

More detailed information on the technical and procedural matters covered in the text of this report can be obtained by writing to the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233.

Content of the tables.—The tables for the United States present summary statistics on plumbing facilities and condition of housing units by tenure, race, and vacancy status for the United States, for SMSA's, and for places of 100,000 inhabitants or more. A series of State tables presents data on plumbing facilities and condition for the State, SMSA's, counties within SMSA's, central cities, and places of 50,000 inhabitants or more. In the New England States, SMSA's consist of towns and cities instead of counties. For these States, therefore, data for counties are not shown.

Sample size.—The data on year-round housing units lacking some or all plumbing facilities are based on a complete count of housing units in 1970 and a 25-percent sample of housing units in 1960. The 1960 counts of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities obtained from a tabulation of the 1960 census records are based on a 25-percent sample. The data on all year-round units are based on a 20-percent sample in 1970 and a 25-percent sample in 1960.

The 1970 estimates of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities are based in part on the Components of Inventory Change survey. The sample for this survey included generally about 3,000 housing units in the major city of each of 15 selected SMSA's, and another 3,000 units in the balance of each of these SMSA's. In addition, a sample of about 18,000 housing units was selected from the remainder of the United States.

Boundaries.—The data shown for 1970 relate to the boundaries as they existed on January 1, 1970. The 1960 data for standard metropolitan statistical areas have been revised, where necessary, to conform to the boundaries as defined for 1970. The 1960 data shown for places relate to the boundaries as defined at the time of the 1960 census. Information on boundary changes between 1960 and 1970 is given in the 1970 Population Census Volume I report for each State.

Symbols.—A dash “—” signifies zero; it may also indicate those places which did not meet the minimum population size requirement for one of the census years shown, or which were incorporated after 1960.

Availability of unpublished data.—Unpublished data are available for all places of 10,000 inhabitants or more and all counties in the United States. Photocopies of these tables can be provided at cost of reproduction. Requests for photocopies or for additional information should be addressed to the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233.

AREA CLASSIFICATIONS

Urban and rural residence.—Urban housing comprises all housing units in urbanized areas and in places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside urbanized areas. More specifically, urban housing consists of all housing units in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, villages, boroughs (except in Alaska), and towns (except in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin), but excluding those housing units in the rural portions of extended cities; (b) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; and (c) other territory, incorporated or unincorporated, included in urbanized areas. Housing units not classified as urban constitute rural housing. Information on the historical development of the urban-rural definition appears in the 1970 Population Census Volume I reports.

Counties.—The primary divisions of the States are, in general, termed counties, but in Louisiana these divisions are known as parishes. There are no counties in Alaska. In this State, statistical areas which are county equivalents have been designated as census divisions; they were developed for general statistical purposes through the cooperation of the State and the Census Bureau. In four States (Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, and Virginia), there are one or more cities which are independent of any county organization and thus constitute primary divisions of their States.

Incorporated places.—These are political units incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages with the following exceptions: (a) Boroughs in Alaska and (b) towns in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin. Boroughs in Alaska are treated as county subdivisions and may include one or more incorporated places. The towns in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin are minor civil divisions similar to the townships found in other States and not necessarily thickly settled centers of population such as the cities, boroughs, towns, and villages in other States. Similarly, in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where some townships possess powers and functions similar to those of incorporated places, the townships are not classified as “incorporated places.” Thus, some minor civil divisions which are “incorporated” in one legal sense of the word are not regarded by the Census Bureau as “incorporated places.” Without this restriction all of the towns in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin and the townships in New Jersey and Pennsylvania would have to be counted as incorporated places without any consideration of the nature of population settlement. The densely settled portions of some are recognized as unincorporated places or as part of an urbanized area.

In Hawaii, there are no incorporated places in the sense of a functioning local governmental unit. The State, however, has recognized places and established boundaries for them. Such places are treated as incorporated in the 1970 census.

Unincorporated places.—As in the 1950 and 1960 censuses, the Census Bureau has delineated boundaries for closely settled population centers without corporate limits. Each place so delineated possesses a definite nucleus of residences and has its boundaries drawn to include, if feasible, all the surrounding closely settled area.

Unincorporated places are identified with the letter "U." Unincorporated place boundaries change with changes in the settlement pattern; a place which has the same name in 1970 as in previous decades does not necessarily have the same boundaries. Information on modifications in the delineation of unincorporated places introduced in the 1970 census appears in the 1970 Population Census Volume I reports.

Standard metropolitan statistical areas.—The Bureau of the Census recognizes 243 standard metropolitan statistical areas (SMSA's) in the United States and 4 in Puerto Rico, making a total of 247 in the 1970 census. These include the 231 SMSA's as defined and named in Bureau of the Budget publication, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas: 1967, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Since 1967, 16 SMSA's have been added, of which two were defined in January 1968 and an additional 14 were defined in February 1971 on the basis of the results of the 1970 census. Changes in SMSA boundaries or titles made after February 1971 are not recognized in this report. SMSA's are defined by the Office of Management and Budget (formerly Bureau of the Budget).

Except in the New England States, a standard metropolitan statistical area is a county or group of contiguous counties which contain at least one city of 50,000 inhabitants or more, or "twin cities" with a combined population of at least 50,000. In addition to the county or counties containing such a city or cities, contiguous counties are included in an SMSA if, according to certain criteria, they are socially and economically integrated with the central city. In the New England States, SMSA's consist of towns and cities instead of counties. Each SMSA must include at least one central city, and the complete title of an SMSA identifies the central city or cities. For a detailed description of the criteria used in defining SMSA's, see the Bureau of the Budget publication cited above.

In this report, figures for central cities refer to the entire housing inventory within the legal city boundaries, including any rural parts of the city or parts outside the SMSA.

DEFINITIONS AND EXPLANATIONS OF SUBJECT CHARACTERISTICS

The definitions and explanations given below are, to a considerable extent, drawn from various technical and procedural materials used in the collection of the data. Also included is certain explanatory information to assist the user in the proper utilization of the statistics. More information on the definitions is given in the 1970 and 1960 Housing Census and Population Census Volume I reports.

Housing units and group quarters.—

Living quarters are classified in the census as either housing units or group quarters. Usually, living quarters are in structures intended for residential use (e.g., a one-family home, apartment house, hotel or motel, boarding house, mobile home or trailer, etc.). Living quarters may also be in structures intended for nonresidential use (e.g., the rooms in a warehouse where a watchman lives), as well as in tents, caves, old railroad cars, etc.

A housing unit is a house, an apartment, a group of rooms, or a single room occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters. Separate living quarters are those in which the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and which have either (1) direct access from the outside of the building or through a common hall or (2) complete kitchen facilities for the exclusive use of the occupants. The occupants may be a single family, one person living alone, two or more families living together, or any other group of related or unrelated persons who share living arrangements (except as described in the section on group quarters). For vacant units, the criteria of separateness, direct access, and complete kitchen facilities for exclusive use are applied to the intended occupants, whenever possible. If the information cannot be obtained, the criteria are applied to the previous occupants. Both occupied and vacant housing units are included in the housing inventory, except that mobile homes, trailers, tents, caves, boats, railroad cars, and the like are included only if they are occupied.

Group quarters are living arrangements for institutional inmates or for other groups containing five or more persons unrelated to the person in charge. Group quarters are located most frequently in institutions, boarding houses, military barracks, college dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses, hospitals, monasteries, convents, and ships. A house or apartment is considered group quarters if it is shared by the person in charge and five or more persons unrelated to him, or if there is no person in charge, by six or more unrelated persons. Information on the housing characteristics of group quarters is not collected in the census.

Year-round housing units.—Data on housing characteristics are limited to year-round housing units; i.e., all occupied units plus vacant units which are intended for year-round use. Vacant units intended for seasonal occupancy and vacant units held for migratory labor are excluded because it is difficult to obtain reliable information for them.

Occupied housing units.—A housing unit is classified as occupied if a person or group of persons is living in it at the time of enumeration or if the occupants are only temporarily absent — for example, on vacation. However, if the persons staying in the unit have their usual place of residence elsewhere, the unit is classified as vacant.

Vacant housing units.—A housing unit is vacant if no one is living in it at the time of enumeration, unless its occupants are only temporarily absent. In addition, a vacant unit may be one which is occupied entirely by persons who have a usual residence elsewhere.

New units not yet occupied are classified as vacant housing units if construction has reached a point where all exterior windows and doors are installed and final usable floors are in place. Vacant units are excluded if unfit for human habitation; that is, if the roof, walls, windows, or doors no longer protect the interior from the elements, or if there is positive evidence (such as a sign on the house or in the block) that the unit is to be demolished or is condemned. Also excluded are quarters being used entirely for nonresidential purposes, such as a store or an office, or quarters used for the storage of business supplies or inventory, machinery, or agricultural products.

Vacancy status.—Vacant housing units are classified as either "seasonal and migratory" or "year-round." "Seasonal" units are intended for occupancy during only certain seasons of the year. Included are such units as beach cottages and hunting cabins, and vacant units held for herders and loggers. "Migratory" units are vacant units held for occupancy by migratory labor employed in farm work during the crop season. "Year-round" vacant housing units are available or intended for occupancy at any time during the year. A unit in a resort area which is usually occupied on a year-round basis is considered year-round. A unit used only occasionally throughout the year is also considered year-round.

Year-round vacant units are subdivided as follows: "For sale only"; "for rent" which also includes vacant units offered either for rent or for sale; and "other vacant" which includes units sold or rented but not yet occupied by the new owner or renter, units held for the occasional use of the owner, and units being held off the market for other reasons.

Tenure.—A housing unit is "owner occupied" if the owner or co-owner lives in the unit, even if it is mortgaged or not fully paid for. A cooperative or condominium unit is "owner occupied" only if the owner or co-owner lives in it. All other occupied units are classified as "renter occupied," including units rented for cash rent and those occupied without payment of cash rent.

Race.—The classification by race shown here refers to the race of the head of the household occupying the housing unit. Figures by tenure are given separately for housing units with Negro heads of household and units with household heads of white and other races. The concept of race as used by the Census Bureau does not denote clear-cut scientific definitions of biological stock. The data represent essentially self-classification by people according to the race with which they identify themselves.

Plumbing facilities.—A unit has all plumbing facilities when it has hot and cold piped water, as well as a flush toilet and a bathtub or shower inside the structure for the exclusive use of the occupants of the unit.

"Lacking some or all plumbing facilities" means that the unit does not have all three specified facilities, or that the toilet and bathing facilities are also for the use of the occupants of other housing units.

The category "dilapidated with all plumbing facilities" consists of dilapidated units which had all three specified plumbing facilities: Hot and cold piped water, as well as a flush toilet and a bathtub or shower inside the structure for the exclusive use of the occupants of the unit.

Condition.—As stated in the introductory text, the 1960 question on condition of housing unit was eliminated from the basic 1970 Census of Population and Housing questionnaires. In the 1960 census and in the 1970 sample survey of Components of Inventory Change, the enumerator classified each housing unit into one of three categories: Sound, deteriorating, or dilapidated.

Sound housing is defined as that which has no defects, or only slight defects which would normally be corrected during the course of regular maintenance. Deteriorating housing has one or more defects of an intermediate nature that must be corrected if the unit is to continue to provide safe and adequate shelter. Dilapidated housing does not provide safe and adequate shelter and in its present condition endangers the health, safety, or well-being of the occupants. Such housing has one or more critical defects; or has a combination of intermediate defects in sufficient number or extent to require considerable repair or rebuilding; or is of inadequate original construction. The defects are either so critical or so widespread that the structure should be extensively repaired or torn down. Examples of critical defects are: Holes; open cracks; rotted, loose, or missing material (siding, shingles, bricks, concrete, tile, plaster, or floorboards) over a large area of the foundation, outside walls, roof, chimney, or inside walls, or roof; substantial sagging of floors, walls, or roof; and extensive damage by storm, fire, or flood. To be classified as dilapidated on the basis of intermediate defects, a housing unit must have such defects in sufficient number or extent that it no longer provides safe and adequate shelter.

Inadequate original construction includes: Shacks, huts, or tents; structures with makeshift walls or roofs, or built of packing boxes or made of scrap lumber or tin; structures lacking foundations with walls resting directly on the ground; structures with dirt floors; and cellars, sheds, barns, garages, or other places not originally intended for living quarters and inadequately converted to such use.

PROCEDURE FOR ESTIMATING DILAPIDATED UNITS WITH ALL PLUMBING FACILITIES

Information on structural condition of housing was collected in the 1940, 1950, and 1960 decennial censuses. In the 1950 census, enumerators classified housing units as "dilapidated" or "not dilapidated." In 1960, units were categorized as "sound," "deteriorating," or "dilapidated." This information was obtained by having census enumerators rate the physical condition of each housing unit in the United States.

Federal and local housing agencies have customarily used statistics on structural condition in combination with the availability of plumbing facilities to provide one of the key criteria for measuring the adequacy of the Nation's housing. "Substandard" housing has been defined by these agencies to include housing units that lacked some or all plumbing facilities for exclusive use and those that had all plumbing facilities for exclusive use but which were rated as "dilapidated."

In the 1970 Census of Population and Housing, information was collected about the availability of plumbing facilities, but not about the structural condition of the housing unit. Evaluation of the 1950 and 1960 censuses showed the data on condition to be unreliable and inaccurate. Furthermore, experiments with methods of self-enumeration of condition showed them to be unsatisfactory.

Research has indicated, however, that a sample survey which uses groups of selected and highly trained enumerators and better controlled procedures would provide data on "substandardness" for the United States and regions as reliable as the results of a decennial census and at much lower cost.

The procedure used in this report to derive estimates of the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities in 1970, and similar estimates for 1960, is explained below. It is based on research which tested the effectiveness of methods which combined the results of sample surveys with objectively defined characteristics available from the census data.

1970 estimates.—In the 1970 Components of Inventory Change survey (CINCH), census enumerators rated structural condition for a national sample of 113,000 housing units. The interviewers used the same criteria and methods to rate condition as were employed in the 1960 census. Information was also collected on the availability of plumbing facilities. The sample size was large enough to provide direct estimates for the major cities of the 15 selected SMSA's. However, since the sample size was not large enough to provide direct estimates for all areas, an estimation procedure was used, combining 1970 census counts with CINCH survey estimates.

The 15 SMSA's and their major cities are:

SMSA	Major city
Atlanta, Ga.	Atlanta
Boston, Mass.	Boston
Buffalo, N.Y.	Buffalo
Chicago, Ill.	Chicago
Cleveland, Ohio	Cleveland
Detroit, Mich.	Detroit
Houston, Tex.	Houston
Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif.	Los Angeles
Miami, Fla.	Miami
New York, N.Y.	New York
Philadelphia, Pa.-N.J.	Philadelphia
St. Louis, Mo.-Ill.	St. Louis
San Francisco-Oakland, Calif.	San Francisco
Seattle-Everett, Wash.	Seattle
Washington, D.C.-Md.-Va.	Washington, D.C.

The area outside the major cities was divided into 19 areas. These consisted of the balance of each of the four regions of the United States after subtracting the 15 SMSA's tabulated separately in the CINCH survey, and the balance of each of the SMSA's after subtracting their major cities.

In each of these 19 areas, the proportional relationship between dilapidated units with complete plumbing and all units with complete plumbing was obtained from CINCH by tenure, race, and vacancy status, by five selected variables. These proportions were then applied, in each of the 19 areas, to the corresponding groups of units with all plumbing facilities as tabulated from the 1970 census records for each place of 10,000 inhabitants or more and the remaining urban and rural portions of the county to provide the 1970 estimates of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities.

Table A shows the estimates for 1970 of the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities in the United States by tenure, race, and vacancy status. Approximately 1.8 million units, or 2.6 percent of the year-round housing inventory in 1970, were estimated as being dilapidated with all plumbing facilities. (The standard errors of the estimates shown in table A will appear in a separate statement on the "Accuracy of Estimates" which may be obtained by writing to the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233.)

Use of data from the Components of Inventory Change survey.—Units with all plumbing facilities in the Components of Inventory Change survey were subdivided into combinations of the following five variables:

1. Whether the unit lacked central or built-in heat;

2. Whether the number of persons per room was 1.01 or more;
3. Whether the head of the household had completed less than five years of school;
4. Whether the unit was in a multiunit structure; and
5. Whether the rent or value was below a specified cutoff.

For each of the two race classifications of renter-occupied units (Negro head of household and all other heads), these variables were treated as pairs of opposite characteristics (e.g., whether the number of persons per room was 1.01 or more or 1.00 or less; whether the unit was in a multiunit structure or not; etc.). Combinations of these variables formed 32 cells for each race class, or 64 in the renter-occupied universe. Since owner-occupied units in multiunit structures are not classified by value in the census, each of the two race classes of owner-occupied units were divided into 24 cells by these variables for a total of 48 cells in the owner-occupied universe. The three classes of vacant units were divided into ten cells. Thus, the total universe of housing units with all plumbing facilities was divided into 122 cells (see figures in Appendix A). For each cell the proportion of units rated dilapidated in the Components of Inventory Change survey was computed. These are referred to as "P" values. (For illustrative purposes, Appendix B presents these proportions for the Northeast Region for 1970 and 1960.) The selection of the five variables was based upon the results of studies using 1960 census data, in which objective population and housing characteristics were tested as predictors of structural condition.

Four of the variables mentioned above are self-explanatory. The determination of rent and value cutoffs is based on the expectation that, in

TABLE A. Estimates of Dilapidated Units With All Plumbing Facilities: 1970

United States	All year-round units
	Number	Percent
All year-round housing units . . . . .	67,700,000	100.00
Dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities . . . . .	1,765,000	2.60

Negro . . . . .	273,000	0.40

general, units with complete private plumbing that rent for less than the median rent of units without complete plumbing also have a higher than average probability of "dilapidation." Table C-1 in Appendix B shows, for 19 areas, the median contract rents and median values for units without complete plumbing which were used to classify the housing units with all plumbing as below or above the rent or value cutoffs. (These data were obtained from the 1970 Census of Housing reports.) To illustrate, table C-1 shows that the median contract rent for housing units without all plumbing occupied by "White and other races" in the balance of the Northeast Region was $51. In that area, all housing units occupied by renters with white and other races as heads of households which had all plumbing facilities and which rented for $51 or less were classified as below the rent cutoff; those that rented for more than $51 were classified as above the rent cutoff.

In applying this calculation to owner-occupied units, the cutoff was determined to be either the lower or upper bound of a class depending on whether the cutoff fell below or above the midpoint of the class since information on value was obtained by class intervals (for example, $5,000 to $7,499). Units for which rent or value was not tabulated were classified as though the rent or value was above the cutoff.

Detailed steps in developing estimates.—The county was the basic unit for compiling totals by SMSA's, States, and summary geographic areas of the United States. The county total, in turn, was obtained as the sum of three basic tabulation areas:

1. Each place of 10,000 inhabitants or more;

2. All places of 2,500-9,999 combined, and urban fringe; and
3. Balance of county.

The procedure for estimating the number of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities in a tabulation area combines data from two sources:

- a. The proportion dilapidated for housing units with all plumbing facilities for a specified category in a geographic area is estimated from the Survey of Components of Inventory Change (CINCH); and
- b. The number of housing units with all plumbing facilities for a specified category in the tabulation area is obtained from the 1970 Census of Housing.

The estimate of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities, "D," is obtained as follows:

$$D = \sum_j X_j P_j$$

where

$X_j$  is the number of housing units with all plumbing facilities in category  $j$  for the given area, reported in the 1970 Census of Housing;

$P_j$  is the estimated proportion dilapidated for cell  $j$  derived from the CINCH survey; and  $j$  categories are identified.

The steps to obtain the estimates can be summarized as follows:

1. The United States in the Components of Inventory Change results was divided into 19 areas. These were: (a) Each of 15 SMSA's minus the major city, and (b) the four regions of the U.S. minus the 15 SMSA's.
2. The universes of year-round units with complete plumbing, in each of these areas, were divided into seven classes of occupied and vacant units.

3. In each area, each of these seven classes was again divided according to whether one of five characteristics was or was not present. This step produced a total of 122 cells in each of the 19 areas; however, since these data were obtained from the CINCH sample, and some of the cells had small numbers in the sample, it was necessary to combine some cells so as to obtain a minimum number of about 15 sample cases in each group of cells.

4. For each of the cells, the number of units that were dilapidated was expressed as a proportion of the entire cell. Thus, 19 sets of proportions were obtained from the CINCH survey, one set of 122 proportions for each of the 19 geographic areas. If the individual cells were grouped to obtain a minimum sample number, then the proportion used for all the constituent cells is the same.

5. The 1970 Census of Housing records for units with all plumbing facilities were tallied by the same variables to form 122 cells of data for each tabulation area (part of county). Within each of the 19 geographic areas, the identical set of proportions (as obtained from CINCH) was applied to the 122 cells tallied for each tabulation area.

6. The products of the multiplications for each set of 122 cells in a tabulation area were summed. The sums are the 1970 statistics "Estimated from the census" in the tabulations which comprise this report.

7. The estimate of dilapidated housing units for the central cities of the 15 SMSA's was obtained from the CINCH survey.

1960 estimates.—Two sets of 1960 statistics are shown for the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities. The data in column 6 of the tables were obtained from the 25-percent sample of the 1960 census. The numbers in column 7 ("Estimated from census") were obtained by a procedure similar to the one used to obtain the 1970 estimates for "dilapidated with all plumbing facilities." However, in deriving the 1960 estimated numbers, the "P" values were obtained from the 25-percent sample of the 1960 census. A comparison of the 1960 estimate of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities with the units reported in the 1960 census gives an indication of the bias of the estimation procedure. However, the 1960 estimate of the bias should not be used as a direct estimate of the bias of the 1970 estimate for particular cells. A more detailed analysis of the error of the 1970 estimates will be given in a separate statement on "Accuracy of Estimates."

Table B shows the estimates for 1960 of the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities in the United States by tenure, race, and vacancy status. About 1.4 percent, approximately 795,000 units of the year-round housing inventory in 1960, were estimated as being dilapidated with all plumbing facilities.

Table C-2 in Appendix B shows the dollar amounts of rent and value which were used in the 19 areas to classify units with complete plumbing as above or below the cutoff in 1960.

The 1960 estimates of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities for several States are subject to two relatively small estimation errors: (1) In applying the individual proportions to each of the 122 cells for each tabulation area, the result for each cell was rounded to a whole number; if the result was less than 0.5, the estimate was rounded to zero. This procedure was adjusted for the States in the South region so that the individual cells were summed to the appropriate subtotals of tenure, race, and vacancy status, and then rounded. In all other States, because of the high proportion of individual cells with an estimate under 0.5, there is a small understatement of the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities. (2) The rent cutoff for vacant-for-rent units was erroneously used for the renter units occupied by "White and other races." For the States in the South region and for the States of California, Massachusetts, New York, and Washington, the correct rent cutoffs were used. For all other States, there is a small overestimate of renter dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities occupied by "White and other races." However, as shown in Appendix B, the cutoff values for vacant-for-rent units and for renters of "White and other races" were very similar for most areas.

The net effect on the estimated totals of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities by region is as follows: Northeast is underestimated by 0.7 percent; North Central is underestimated by 2.6 percent; and the West is underestimated by 1.9 percent.

Comparability with 1970 Components of Inventory Change survey.—Statistics on condition and plumbing facilities are also shown in Volume IV of the 1970 Census of Housing, Components of Inventory Change. The data are based on information obtained in interviews for a sample of approximately 113,000 housing units in late 1970. Statistics are presented for the United States by regions and for each of 15 selected standard metropolitan statistical areas with separate data for the major city of each of these 15 SMSA's.

Differences between 1970 data on the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities shown in the CINCH report and this report may be attributed to a number of factors:

1. CINCH estimates were prepared from sample survey observations, whereas the estimates in this report were prepared by applying the proportions dilapidated, as estimated from CINCH, to 1970 census counts of units with all plumbing facilities for the various tabulation areas;<sup>1</sup>
2. Measurement errors caused by differences in (a) timing and (b) training of interviewers, between CINCH and the 1970 census, affected the total counts of housing units as well as their characteristics; and
3. Sampling variability associated with CINCH estimates and with the 1970 census data on units with all plumbing facilities which are based on a 20-percent sample of units.

Comparability with 1960 census data.—The 1970 figures for all year-round housing units and for units lacking some or all plumbing facilities are generally comparable with the data tabulated from the 1960 census records. There may be differences between the 1960 data in this report shown as “reported in census” and those published in Volume I of the 1960 Census of Housing resulting from the exclusion of vacant seasonal units from the 1960 tabulations given in this report, and differences in processing procedures.

The procedure for estimating the number of dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities as described for 1970 was also used to prepare similar estimates using data from the 1960 census with the exception that estimates of the proportion of units with all plumbing facilities that were dilapidated were obtained directly from the 1960 census data. Use of 1960 census data to estimate the proportion dilapidated probably caused the estimates to be understated since evidence from a post-census evaluation survey, corroborated by the 1960 Survey of Components of Change and Residential Finance (SCARF) indicated that, on a national basis, the number of occupied dilapidated units with all plumbing facilities in the 1960 census was understated by about 286,000 units, or 40 percent. The 1970 estimates are based on data for dilapidated housing collected in the 1970 CINCH survey. It is believed that the quality of enumeration in 1970 in CINCH is more directly comparable to the results of the 1960 SCARF than to those obtained in the 1960 decennial census. As a result, the 1970 estimates of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities (based on CINCH) are probably higher than the 1960 estimates based on the understated counts in the 1960 census.

Qualifications of estimates.—The intent of the Census Bureau in collecting statistics on structural condition in the 1960 census and in the 1970 CINCH was to supply information about the quality of housing. Quality was defined as a measure of adequacy of shelter and the degree to which housing endangered “health, safety, or well-being of their occupants.” The lack of complete plumbing facilities for exclusive use has been held to constitute a health hazard, and to be indicative of other serious shortcomings.

In research reported in Measuring the Quality of Housing, Census Bureau Working Paper No. 25, evidence was cited which indicated that both the 1960 Evaluation Program of the 1960 census and the 1960 Components of Change survey found about 1,000,000 more occupied dilapidated units than were reported in the 1960 census.<sup>2</sup> If the 1960 Evaluation Program and the 1960 Components of Change survey are held as standards of accuracy, there is apparent a net undercount of dilapidation in the 1960 census. The trend in the number of dilapidated units from 1960 to 1970, as measured from the 1960 census reported figures or from the 1960 estimated figures, is affected, therefore, by this under-reporting of dilapidated units in the 1960 census.

The classification of units as dilapidated by census enumerators was a process of low reliability. Of the occupied units classified as dilapidated by post-census enumerators in 1950 and 1960, only about 48 percent had been similarly classified by the regular enumerators in 1950 and 38 percent in 1960. Agreement was reduced further when restricted to dilapidated units with complete plumbing. Unpublished data from the 1950 Evaluation Program show that only about 25 percent of the units classified as dilapidated with all plumbing facilities in the evaluation program were classified in the same category by the regular census enumerators.

The data on availability of plumbing are subject to some error but to a lesser degree than the condition rating. Of the occupied units found to be lacking piped hot water in the 1960 Evaluation Program, 85 percent were so identified by regular census enumerators. The comparable figures were 90 percent for units lacking bathtub or shower and 84 percent for units without a flush toilet for exclusive use. There were no significant differences between the total numbers of such units in the evaluation program and the regular census.

The particular estimation procedure used is also a potential source of error.

It assumes that within each of the 19 geographic areas the proportions of dilapidated housing with complete private plumbing facilities in every tabulation area are approximately the same in each cell as they are in the larger area which included the tabulation area. To the extent that this assumption does not hold, the estimates of dilapidated housing units with all plumbing facilities are subject to bias. Moreover, the biases arising from this source do not necessarily affect the 1960 and 1970 estimates in the same way.

Finally, it should be recognized that the data on condition of housing are limited solely to the structure and its facilities and, as such, do not relate the structure to its environment.

In spite of many qualifications listed above concerning both the estimates of dilapidation and the estimating procedure itself, a judgment was made that the 1970 estimates would be useful even with the uncertainties that are present in the data.

A more detailed statement on "Accuracy of Estimates" including information on the sampling and estimation errors may be obtained by writing to the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233.
